

3 December 1954

MEMO FOR THE RECORD OF THE CLARK COMMITTEE

1200 - 2 December 25X1A

1600 - 3 December

Office of Training [REDACTED]

25X1A

1. The day and a half spent with Office of Training in [REDACTED] was a rewarding and impressive experience. The Office of Training had organized their program in such a manner as to run off in clockwork precision. Nothing was left undone and the reactions of both Colonel Lane and Colonel Miller could best be measured by the fact that they did not have a single question of import to ask. Due credit should be given to the Office of Training for a magnificent job; it was the consensus of the Agency personnel that in future investigations such as this, a logical starting point might be the Office of Training and from there, branching out into the DD(I) and DD(P).

2. Colonel Miller's reaction could best be judged by a comment he made to Colonel Lane while in the site of the training program when he said, "They are certainly putting on a good show for you", thereby indicating that his interest in the DD(P) was non-existent.

3. On our return to Washington, Colonel Miller informed me that "CIA has no business engaging in this cold warfare. You people should not be fighting battles. It is costing a lot of money to train your armies for this work that could well be done by the Army itself. In my estimation your overseas operators are principally concerned with picking up overt material rather than engaging in behind-the-lines activities.

4. I believe one of Colonel Miller's strongest recommendations to the Hoover Committee will be that DD(P) activities be studied intensively, their results weighed, and their future responsibilities curtailed to a minimum need.

25X1A

[REDACTED]

25X1A

FLD/du

cc: General [REDACTED]

Inspector General

010156

3 December 1954

MEMO FOR THE RECORD OF THE CLARK COMMITTEE

1200 - 2 December

1600 - 3 December

Office of Training [REDACTED]

1. The day and a half spent with Office of Training [REDACTED] was a rewarding and impressive experience. The Office of Training had organized their program in such a manner as to run off in clockwork precision. Nothing was left undone and the reactions of both Colonel Lane and Colonel Miller could best be measured by the fact that they did not have a single question of import to ask. Due credit should be given to the Office of Training for a magnificent job; it was the consensus of the Agency personnel that in future investigations such as this, a logical starting point might be the Office of Training and from there, branching out into the DD(I) and DD(P).

2. Colonel Miller's reaction could best be judged by a comment he made to Colonel Lane while in the site of the training program when he said, "They are certainly putting on a good show for you", thereby indicating that his interest in the DD(P) was non-existent.

3. On our return to Washington, Colonel Miller informed me that "CIA has no business engaging in this cold warfare. You people should not be fighting battles. It is costing a lot of money to train your armies for this work that could well be done by the Army itself. In my estimation your overseas operators are principally concerned with picking up overt material rather than engaging in behind-the-lines activities.

4. I believe one of Colonel Miller's strongest recommendations to the Hoover Committee will be that DD(P) activities be studied intensively, their results weighed, and their future responsibilities curtailed to a minimum need.

cc: [REDACTED]

Inspector General

This document has been approved for release through the HISTORICAL REVIEW PROGRAM of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Date 5/5/92

010156